THE VOICE OF THE POPE

CAUSES CONSTERNATION AMONG THE LAND LEAGUERS.

The Question Is: What Has the Vatican Been Promised for It, and Who Promised It?—Carl Schurz Banqueted—Minister Pendleton Almost Well—Notes.

LEO XIII.

DUBLIN, May 2.—The pope's decree has produced consternation in the ranks of the land leaguers, who as yet do not know where they stand. The priests, many of whom performed the clerical work of the leaguers and whose countenance has been the soul of the movement, will unquestionably be required to withdraw from the organization if the plan of campaign is persisted in; and the great body of the priesthood specially instructed by the pope's decree, will scarcely fail to discourage the plan of campaign.

It will intensify the hate of the Irish peasantry, as well as their political leaders for the government, but must disrupt the league or greatly weaken them by a falling off in contributions. What the church has denounced Irishmen have not generally persisted in. Such is the opinion of the more conservative class of Irishmen.

On the other hand the active leaders in and promoters of the plan of campaign affect to believe that the Irish people will not take their politics from Rome, and thereby implicitly assume that disbelief in the pope's infallibility is not regarded by the Irish laity as heresy.

Now that the gist of the edict of Pope Leo XIII against the plan of campaign and other methods adopted by the Irish Home Rulers to get even with hard landlords and other obnoxious persons has been published, the questions most discussed in connection therewith, are: What has the Vatican been promised as the price of the decree, and who has done the promising? Whether these questions be explicitly answered or not, it is now quite certain that neither party to the compact, if one exists, will find it an easy matter to carry out its agreement.

Apparently the papal rescript has had little effect in altering the determination of the Irish Home Rulers to continue their warfare against the landlords, and the English government, in their own way, as the protests of the Ulster Orangemen have had in convincing the Parnellites, that all of Ireland, worthy of special legislation for its welfare, was situated in the immediate vicinity of Belfast.

Certainly that part of the decision of the congregation of the inquisition intended for the public eye does not seem, when read carefully, to be very formidable, and it is not difficult to see how it can in many ways be evaded. How much more severe the requirements of the separate orders issued to the Irish hierarchy may be cannot, of course, be even conjectured, but it is safe to say that the prelates upon whom the execution of such instructions devolve, will find it greatly to the interests of the church to construe them very liberally.

Singularly enough there has developed in Conservative and Unionist circles almost as much opposition to the edict of the Vatican as is displayed in Ireland, though upon entirely different grounds from those taken by the Irish. A very large section of those objectors to papal interference in political matters between England and Ireland regard the decree, obviously issued through government influence, as an admission of the ministry that its policy in Ireland has been a failure; that the government is unable to govern Ireland without the assistance of an ally and that the party in power is repugnant to concessions to the pope repugnant to the views of Tory churchmen. The general opinion is that the decree can do the Irish no harm, but will rather strengthen the National league, while it is difficult to see what either the church or the government has gained by its promulgation.

Carl Schurz Banqueted.
BERLIN, May 2.—A banquet was given at the Kaiserhof hotel Sunday evening in honor of Mr. Carl Schurz. Count Herbert Bismarck, several members of the reichstag and other distinguished persons were present. Professor Gneist, in proposing the health of Mr. Schurz, said that as a popular orator, as the leader of an army corps in the civil war, as a senator, and as a minister in a model administration, Mr. Schurz had always remained the same true man.

Mr. Schurz replied: "I stand here as a simple American citizen of German birth. We of German birth in America entertain for our extensive commonwealth love as for a bride, which, however, does not diminish our affection for our old mother."

He complimented Bismarck and the Hohenzollerns, giving them the credit of German unity and of being the preservers of peace in Europe.

Mr. Schurz will shortly be received by Prince Bismarck.

Riot in Santiago, Chili.

SANTIAGO, Chili, May 2.—Sunday, between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon, a mob composed of the worst elements of the populace gathered to destroy the cars of the tram company, because the company had not acceded to a demand for a reduction of its rates of fare. More than thirty of the company's cars were burned. The police and militia turned out to quell the disturbance, and captured the ringleaders of the mob. The tram company loses $100,000.

Ferment in the Balkans.

BELGRADE, May 2.—A large body of Montenegrins have crossed the river Lim and occupied a corner of mountain territory in Bosnia, near the frontiers of Serbia. The Musselmans at Nova Varosch have fled.

The Montenegrins are the swash bucklers of the Balkans and the tools most freely used by Russia in organizing raids and insurrections, which are now being organized in nearly all the Balkan states. Bosnia is in an Austrian dependency.

Irish Home Rulers in Canada.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 2.—The pope's decree concerning the plan of campaign causes considerable agitation among the friends here of Irish Home Rule. They say they will not submit to the guidance of Rome in political matters.

Foreign Notes.

Another French duel is to be fought by the Duke de Grammont, a well known sportsman, and M. Rainebault, a fellow member of the Cercle de la Rue Royale.

Sir Alfred Phillips Ryder, admiral of her majesty's fleet, was drowned in the Thames. Admiral Ryder suffered from insomnia, and the drowning was the result of an accident.

A hitch has occurred in floating the stock of the Walker's brewery, of Liverpool, the Barings having declared to proceed with the matter at present. It is stated that the business of the brewery has increased by more than £500,000 since the idea of selling stock was first made public.

Gen. Boulanger has written a letter protesting against the warlike ideas that have been attributed to him. He wishes now to declare distinctly before France and Europe that democratic France is "maligned by being credited with thoughts of aggression, to which he has ever been and still remains resolutely opposed."

THE ANARCHISTS.

Petitions Circulated for Pardoning Fielden, Schwab and Neebe.

CHICAGO, May 2.—A petition to Governor Oglesby for the pardoning of Anarchists Fielden, Schwab and Neebe has been circulating the last four days among the Socialists, Anarchists and radical laborites of this city. It has received thousands of signatures and will be submitted to-night at a mass meeting of workmen called for the purpose of notification. The text of this petition is almost word for word the same which was circulated a few days before the execution of Spies, Fischer Parsons and Engel.

The thing has been very quietly engineered and nobody has been approached with the document not believed to be thoroughly in accord with radical principles, as it was feared that the premature publication of the facts might some how injure the cause.

Young Lady Accidentally Shot.

VINCENNES, Ind., May 2.—Saturday evening Miss Dora Davis, who lived with Mrs. Mary Koontz, of Harrison township, was accidentally shot by John Benson, who was carelessly handling a revolver. THE NEW CHIEF JUSTICE.

CHICAGO NEWSPAPER COMMENTS ON MELVILLE W. FULLER.

They All Unite in Praising the Man Whom President Cleveland Has Appointed to Fill the Seat Made Vacant By the Death of the Late Morrison R. Waite.

CHICAGO, May 2.—The Globe, Democratic, this morning says: "It would be an abrogation of judgment foreign to the character of the Globe to say that Melville W. Fuller is the fittest citizen for the post of chief justice of the supreme court, whom the president could have chosen. Not holding such a belief, the Globe will not make such an assertion. Conscientiously, however, it may be said that the president could have made, even among the distinguished men that were recommended, a worse selection. Mr. Fuller is a lawyer of very high character, whose most distinctive traits are sincerity and conscientiousness. Though he has had no judicial experience, the constitution of his mind is such that those best acquainted with him probably will hesitate the least to express the opinion that he will be a painstaking, pure and perfectly upright judge."

The Inter-Ocean says: "President Cleveland could not have made a better selection. Mr. Fuller is a great lawyer and a man of irreproachable record in every respect. He is not worn out and fossilized, neither is he inexperienced."

The Times says: "That in Mr. Fuller's appointment the president has acted wisely and judiciously is a matter wherein illustrious predecessors have at time woefully blundered, the quick assent of the senate will testify. No possible reason can be conjectured why confirmation should not instantly follow."

The News says: "The president has made a selection that will give general satisfaction throughout the country. In this city, where Mr. Fuller's character and abilities are best known, the appointment will be regarded with especial favor. He has occupied a prominent and honored place at the bar of Illinois, and in the political councils of the Democratic party he has been a strong conservative force for good."

The Tribune says: "It will give hearty satisfaction to the friends of the Hon. Melville W. Fuller that the president, after long vacillation between the Delaware senator, who represented Bayardism and state sovereignty, and the American minister at London, who represented Anglo-mania and the aristocratic system, as against the Republican, has at last turned to Illinois and made his selection here of a Democrat against whom there are no animosities and whose ability and character are above reproach. As a war Democrat and as the advocate of political reform he is so far above the presidential standard that it is a matter of some surprise the president should have selected him. As a Democrat had to be selected, however, it is matter for congratulation that the president chose better than he knew in the midst of his fright."

The Herald says: "The greatest prize of the legal profession, the richest jewel in the crown of professional labors, has been awarded, and justly awarded, to our distinguished townsman, Melville W. Fuller. A more fitting selection, or one that would better command the respect of the bar and the country, the president could not make. Rich in the acquirements essential to the judicial character, Mr. Fuller also possesses the firm and just mind and the courage necessary to him who would worthily fill the seat made illustrious by Jay and Ellsworth, by Marshall and Taney."

COLONEL WILLIAM J. FINLAY,

The Millionaire Brewer, Said to Be Dying at Toledo, Ohio.

TOLEDO, O., May 2.—Col. William J. Finlay, the millionaire brewer, is reported dying. For half a century he has been prominently identified with the business and political life of the Maumee valley. He was a Democrat of the old school, and was in every way warm hearted, impulsive and generous. His wife died many years ago, and he has no children to inherit his vast fortune. Years ago when William J. Finlay was struggling along in what was then the little town of Toledo, trying his best to make a living, and succeeding most indifferently, he was given a start in life by James B. Steedman, who was then in a position of wealth and influence.

The benefactor in after years won fame and distinction, became a major general in the late war, where he served his country well, and earned the title his friends bestowed upon him—the hero of Chicauga. He was a power and made his mark in journalism. When he died, at the age of sixty-six, Gen. Steedman was Toledo's chief of police.

The young Irishman, Finlay, thrived under the patronage of his friend. He loved the general in life, mourned his death, and has always felt and shown his gratitude.

To make a permanent monument of his grateful remembrance, and to do what the city should have done to commemorate the life and deeds of a distinguished citizen, Mr. Finlay resolved to devote the sum of $25,000 to erecting, in stone, iron and bronze, a memorial that should be a beauty to the city, as well as a tribute to his friend. The monument was unveiled May 28, 1887, with great ceremony, many well known military men participating.

How The Tariff Works.

The high tariff advocates have deluded the workingmen, to some extent, for years with the cry that American labor must be protected from the pauper labor of Europe. That has been a favorite cry with monopolists whenever a reduction of the burdensome war tax was mentioned. But the mask is being torn from this scarecrow and the people are learning the real effects of this high tariff system.

We are told that this system—a system which is making the rich richer and the poor poorer, a system that fosters monopolies and encourages trusts—enables the manufacturer to pay his workmen higher wages. "Such a claim under the circumstances," remarks a distinguished speaker on this subject, "is preposterous. By placing a tax on imported goods you can not increase the wages of labor. If you can, why is it, after nearly thirty years of the highest tariff taxation ever known in the history of the world, that wages in many of the protected industries have declined from 20 to 60 per cent? If the tariff of $2 per thousand feet of lumber makes wages higher, why is it that the wages of men in the lumber woods have declined 50 per cent. In the last ten years, while the price of stumpage has advanced from 100 to 800 per cent?"

This distinguished speaker is backed up on this statement by statistics. In the most highly protected industries wages have declined in many instances, while the boot and shoe industry of Massachusetts, comparatively unprotected, has been paying and is still paying the highest wages received in any part of the New England States by manufacturing operatives.

In one of the speeches delivered in Congress in his subject recently, the working of the tariff—how it protects the laborer—was explained in a few words. Said the speaker: "Here comes a shipload of goods. The custom-house officer says to the importer, 'Pay the Government of the United States 47 per cent. of their value.' 'What for?' says the importer. 'To protect American labor against the pauper labor of Europe,' replies the custom-house officer. The importer pays the tax and adds it to the cost of goods, and the tax is ultimately paid by the customer. By and by there comes another ship to our shores. 'What have you got there?' is asked of the Captain. 'Two thousand Italian immigrants,' he replies. 'Bring them ashore,' says the custom-house officer; 'right over here in Pennsylvania we have ten thousand men now on a strike because they can not make wages enough to keep soul and body together; take your men over there and help us protect American labor.'

There is the way the tariff has been working for years, but the outlook is brighter than ever for a reform and revision of the iniquitous system, thanks to the Democratic administration at Washington and the Democratic majority in Congress.

CONGRESSMAN GEORGE M. THOMAS has been granted leave of absence for ten days on account of "important business." The "important business" is probably the Republican State convention at Louisville.

SHANNON.

J. W. McClung, of St. Paul, Minn., has been spending a week with his old schoolmate, Dr. H. L. Parry, of Mayslick. Mr. McClung carries himself very youthfully. The writer had the pleasure of meeting him at Dr. P.'s elegant home on Friday last, and it required but a small effort on the part of the trio to make our boyhood dine with our manhood. What a glorious time we had together!

Between 800 and 1,000 persons, nearly equally divided as to sex, halling from Robertson, Fleming and Mason counties, assembled at Zion's Hill on Sunday last to witness the dedication of Forman's Chapel.

The scriptures teach that God is well pleased with those who build temples to his name.

The dedicatory services consisted of reading of the 122nd Psalm, a sermon suitable to the occasion by Rev. J. Zimmerman, followed by the ritualistic service of the M. E. Church, then the formal presentation of the house by the trustees, and its dedication as a church.

The services concluded with doxology and benediction and singing by the Pious Choir, Professor Summers leading, assisted by Miss Dillon; Miss Caywood presided at the organ.

The church is called "Forman's Chapel" in honor of Mr. William Forman, who gave the lot upon which the little temple is built and contributed to the building and its ornamentation. It has a seating capacity of 300, and is a very pretty building 30x40 feet, painted white with green shutters and wine colored corner boards.

The Old School Baptists at Mayslick.

Our Desha Valley representative was out last week near Mayslick spending a bright day with the Laytham brothers, and had the pleasure of meeting two of the representative ministers of the above named church—Elder Silas H. Durand, of South Hampton, Penn., and Elder P. G. Lester, of Farmdale, Ky. They were circulating a new hymn and tune book compiled by Durand & Lester and sung a number of the new songs of their own composition for illustration. They were very fine and rendered with splendid voices and with "the spirit and the understanding." Elders Lester and Durand preached in the afternoon of Thursday at the home of Anthony Laytham, from Gallatians, fifth chapter and fifth verse. They then went to the home of Mrs. Azubia Laytham, where, after a very elegant six-o'clock tea, Elder Durand preached a very interesting and instructive discourse, the parlors and hall being fairly filled with a number of the neighbors and friends. On Friday at ten o'clock these ministers occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church at Mayslick. Elder Durand preached an able doctrinal sermon to an attentive audience.

EGYPT'S SLAVE GIRLS.

THEIR LIFE COMPARED WITH THAT OF THE ENGLISH DRUDGE.

The Scant Wages of Civilization—Work of a Soudani Servant in the Land of the Nile—The Fair Circassian's Usual Fate. No Sense of Degradation.

The English drudge rises early and goes to bed late, working eight or twelve hours a day, either in her miserable garret or in a huge manufacturing hive. Pinched with hunger and cold, worn out with labor, exposed to temptation and degradation, her joyless life stretches behind her and before her, with no pleasures to look back upon, no hope to look forward to. The wages she earns, those wages which proudly separates her from the slave, are barely sufficient to keep body and soul together, till at last the body gives way or the soul revolts. Then comes the inevitable end, and a verdict of "Death from starvation" or "Found drowned" closes the scene.

The Soudani girl is taken from her parental hut of sticks and mud and sold to a respectable family or perhaps a very rich one. In the first case, she will probably be alone; in the second, she will find others like herself. She represents so much capital invested, and is looked after with equivalent care. She is a servant whose wages have been paid twenty years in advance. It is true they have not been paid to her, but that is all the better for the girl. She is well housed and well fed, and wants for nothing. She is immediately provided with decent clothes and set to housework. She has charge of the family washing and cleaning, and of the kitchen, and generally fulfills these duties much better than a native paid servant would do. She is under no special restraint, accompanies her mistress shopping or does the marketing herself, and gossips her fill with the neighbors as she hangs out the linen on the house top, or sweeps the front door step.

Her work is by no means hard, and after the fashion of Egypt, where every man is a brother and every woman a sister, she is looked upon by the family quite as one of themselves. Speaking from personal observation, we may affirm that the black women are almost invariably treated with the utmost kindness and indulgence, and are often spoiled like children by the too great good nature of their masters or mistresses. They constitute a very merry, happy portion of the population, and it is seldom one can find a black girl without an infectious broad grin on her polished face. If she chooses to marry, as she often does, with her owner's consent, she receives a dowry, and goes forth a "free" woman in the letter, though often, as she finds to her cost, a greater bond slave in the spirit than in the days of her servitude.

Now let us go a step higher in the social scale, and place the middle class English girl, compelled to work for her living, side by side with the Circassian, and we shall find again that all material advantages, of which alone we speak, are not on the side of the free. The Circassian is a little fair haired lass from a far village in Turkestan (pace Dr. Tanner). Her father is a robber or a herdsman, and she will perhaps be a princess. The Prince Charming, whom the governess is always looking for, but who never comes, is a very strong potentiality in the future of the white slave girl.

One day a bearded and venerable old Turk arrives from Stamboul, and picks out our little girl. She is not carried away by force, but gold is counted out, and she is perched on a mule, and bids good-by forever to barbarism. The purchaser takes every imaginable pains with her education and appearance. She is taught to read and write, to dance and sing, to embroider in silk and play the guitar, and further initiated into all the mysteries of the toilet. When she has grown into budding womanhood the dealer lets his best customers know that he possesses a treasure almost priceless, and all her virtues and beauties are detailed with the usual Oriental exaggeration. Finally, some royal princess or rich pasha's wife expresses a wish to see her, and extra care having been taken with her bath and dress, she is presented for inspection. She gives samples of her accomplishments, musical, gymnastic and otherwise. Accepted, she is at once clothed with a rich silk dress, and receives a present of a necklace or bracelet as an earnest of favor before she joins her fellow slaves. Beyond assisting her mistress in the toilet, accompanying her in her drives, and handing her coffee and cigarettes, she has little to do. She is an ornamental appendage rather than a servant. A household such as one of these Circassians would enter, would contain a crowd of men servants and black women to do the work, and perhaps ten to twenty other girls like herself, and a very gay time they have together. The great ladies are very fond of exchanging visits and giving musical entertainments, at all of which some of the slave girls attend. When she goes out with her mistress in the natty little brougham, almost the only difference between the lady and the maid lies in the former taking the right hand seat. The girl is dressed in a way to do credit to the house she belongs to, and often sparkles with jewels, chatting freely with everybody at the places she visits, and enjoying herself as fully as any of the emancipated.

When the time comes for her to be married, her owner chooses a suitable husband and gives a rich dowry, and many of the marriages of slave girls eclipse in magnificence those of even the wealthier classes. The erstwhile barefooted ragged little Circassian from Turkestan's Land is now a princess or pasha's wife, with slaves of her own; but she would laugh if you suggested to her that there was anything degrading in their position or had been in her own.—London Saturday Review.

A Visit to Dr. Franklin.

Mr. Cutler says of his visit to Dr. Franklin: "There was no curiosity in Philadelphia which I felt so anxious to see as this great man, who had been the wonder of Europe as well as the glory of America. When I entered his house I felt as if I was going to be introduced to the presence of an European monarch. But how were my ideas changed when I saw a short, fat, truncheon old man, in a plain Quaker dress, bald pate, and short white locks, sitting without his hat under a tree (in the garden) and, as Mr. Gerry introduced me, rose from his chair, took me by the hand, expressed his joy to see me, welcomed me to the city, and begged me to seat myself close to him. His voice was low, but his countenance frank and pleasing. He instantly reminded me of old Capt. Cummings, for he is nearly of his pitch, and no more of the air of superiority about him."—Magazine of American History.

Jilted Lover Shoots Himself.

WABASH, Ind., May 2.—At a late hour Sunday night William Doran, a well known young man living at Peru, committed suicide by shooting himself. The act was committed on the street, near his home. Doran had a falling out with his best girl, and last night, when he called to see her, she inconsiderately slammed the door in his face. This act caused despondency, and led to the self-murder.

Shot Away With $100,000.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The Times says that Charles L. De Baun, assistant cashier of the National bank, is a defaulter to the amount of $100,000. He had been connected with the institution twenty years. The defaulter's methods were to manipulate the books, and it is thought that the speculations have extended over a long period. Mr. De Baun has left for parts unknown.
